

John David Boehr

Baritone

Noted both for his passion for the art and for his deep level of commitment to each role, emerging baritone John David Boehr has been invited back to New York City Opera to cover Robert Storch for the revival of Strauss' Intermezzo this fall, after covering the title role of Don Giovanni and Ormonte in Partenope in their 2009-2010 season. Also in 2010, he performed L'Etoile with Austin Lyric Opera and covered the role of Reinaldo Arenas for Fort Worth Opera's world premiere of Jorge Martín's Before Night Falls. Mr. Boehr has appeared with Austin Lyric Opera, Santa Fe Opera, Palm Beach Opera, Tanglewood Music Festival, Pittsburgh Opera, Opera Fairbanks, and Minnesota Opera. He was invited to sing the role of Figaro in Il Barbiere di Siviglia for Minnesota Opera after being a Resident Artist for the company in 2007-2009. For the summer seasons of 2006 and 2007, Mr. Boehr sang with the Santa Fe Opera as a member of the prestigious Apprentice Artist program, and in spring 2007 he was chosen to sing the role of Carlo in the Santa Fe Opera's premiere of a new work by John Kennedy entitled Trinity. Other recent roles include the role of Osmano in L'Ormino (Pittsburgh Opera); Sciarrone in Tosca and the notary in Don Pasquale (Palm Beach Opera); and the role of Masetto in Don Giovanni under the baton of James Levine (Tanglewood Music Festival). Earlier roles include Bob in The Old Maid and the Thief, Papageno in The Magic Flute, Belcore in The Elixir of Love, and Guglielmo in Così fan tutte. Mr. Boehr received his Bachelor of Music from Baylor University, where he studied under Dr. Jon Van Cura, and he has won numerous prizes at vocal competitions sponsored by the Dallas Opera Guild, Palm Beach Opera, and the Metropolitan Opera Council Southwest Regional Auditions, among others.
